Dani is a front end projects lawyer with over a decade of experience advising public and private clients on the planning, procurement and delivery of complex major infrastructure with leading expertise in the transport and energy sectors.

Her experience extends to the development, drafting, review and negotiation of all project documentation spanning relationship contracting, public private partnerships, engineering procurement and construction contracts, as well as more traditional design and construct contracts.

Prior to joining MolinoCahill, Dani was a Partner at PwC and has also worked in some of Australia's leading projects practices at top tier international and national law firms. She also held the roles of Director Legal at the Level Crossing Removal Project and Director, Commercial and Legal at the Major Transport Infrastructure Authority in Victoria, with responsibility across the Victorian Big Build program of works.

She has been at the forefront of the Victorian Government's development of relationship contracting on major public transport projects as well as most recently advising on first of kind electricity transmission projects in Australia.

Recent Experience

Advising the public sector (both NSW and Vic) on the planning and procurement for first of kind major transmission infrastructure projects, including considering the options for the scope, procurement, delivery and operation of Renewable Energy Zones.

Advising a private sector client on the development of a procurement and delivery strategy for a landmark $25 billion solar project, including the development of bespoke contractual arrangements.

Advising the Level Crossing Removal Project (LXRP) on the development of the Alliance and Program Alliance model and all commercial and legal aspects in the procurement and delivery of the LXRP works packages, including the development, review and negotiation of all key project documentation.

Advising the Major Transport Infrastructure Authority (MTIA) on key legal, commercial and strategic matters across its five projects, including the development, review and negotiation of key project documents across the MTIA program spanning Alliancing, ITC, PPPs and D&C contracts.

Advising the Construction Industry Leadership Forum (CILF) on the progress of CILF initiatives to improve the effectiveness and value of the procurement and delivery of major public infrastructure projects. The CILF members include the Australian Constructors Association together with the NSW, VIC, QLD and WA state government major project delivery agencies.
